Every day, sometimes multiple times, it "updates" and takes well over 5 minutes just to get from the "almost there" page to my dashboard when my connection is perfectly fine. I was able to boil water on my stove and cook a pot of mac and cheese within the time that it took to open the app and it was still loading. I wish I was exaggerating but I am not. It is a regular source of unreasonable frustration but it's required for my job so I can't get rid of it.

App hostily tries to keep forcing notifications on. even with them disabled in settings, it keeps showing a red warning marker advising there is a problem. the app constantly pops up a window, trying to force you to navigate to phone settings to enable notifications. if I wanted notifications on, I'd turn them on. I don't need to be harassed non stop to turn them on.
