Overview of the Hospital

The Veterinary Teaching Hospital (VTH) at Jordan University of Science and Technology (JUST) serves as the clinical and training arm of the Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, providing comprehensive veterinary services, practical education, and research opportunities in animal health and welfare. Established to meet the growing needs of the veterinary profession in Jordan and the region, the hospital combines excellence in clinical care with innovation in veterinary education and research. The hospital is equipped with state-of-the-art diagnostic, medical, and surgical facilities, offering a wide range of services for small animals, large animals, and equines. Its specialized sections—including Small Animal Medicine and Surgery, Large Animal and Equine Services, Diagnostic Imaging, Clinical Laboratories, Pharmacy, and Postmortem Facilities—ensure that each case is managed with the highest professional standards and scientific precision.

As an integral part of JUST's academic mission, the hospital provides hands-on clinical training to undergraduate and postgraduate veterinary students, interns, and residents, fostering critical thinking, diagnostic skills, and ethical practice. The hospital also plays an important role in community outreach, offering preventive, diagnostic, and therapeutic services to farmers, animal owners, and public institutions across Jordan. In addition to its educational and clinical functions, the hospital supports scientific research and collaborative projects in animal health, epidemiology, surgery, and pharmacology, contributing to the advancement of veterinary science at both national and international levels. Through its commitment to excellence, compassion, and innovation, the Veterinary Teaching Hospital at JUST continues to serve as a leading center for veterinary healthcare, education, and research—dedicated to improving animal welfare, supporting public health, and shaping the future of veterinary medicine in Jordan and beyond.
